The gun interacted with our communities in the heart of the liberation struggle as our brave combatants confronted the enemy. The enemy also used the gun to frustrate the pace and effort of the anti-colonial fight. The counter-ideological motifs of the gun in Zimbabwe's struggle for liberation now manifest in a different form.

Chimurenga is a word in the Shona language. The Ndebele equivalent, though not as widely used since the majority of Zimbabweans are Shona speaking, is Umvukela, roughly meaning "revolutionary struggle" or uprising. In specific historical terms, it also refers to the Ndebele and Shona insurrections against administration by the British South Africa Company during the late

Zimbabwe is turning 40 on April 18, hence, it is critical to reflect on the role women played from pre-independent Zimbabwe to date. The country's Independence came after a protracted struggle in which both male and female freedom fighters played a crucial role. Forty years on, it is high time we reflect on progress made, to call for change and celebrate acts of courage and determination by ordinary women, who played an extraordinary role in the history of Zimbabwe.
