Do you know what makes a story great? All the best stories have a few things in common. First, we need the voice of a narrator or a storyteller. Then, add interesting characters, throw them into a risky setting, and get ready for a good dose of conflict. Give those characters a purpose or goal, and that's then the real action begins. Story is our calling. It is also the next generation’s best chance of identifying with the Church and changing the world. As we become storytellers, we learn to see the world in terms of stories being lived and told. We discover deeper insights into God, ourselves, and others. God’s story is happening. We are right in the middle of a page-turner—and God is in it with us. Start seeing your life as a part of God’s story and make some great adventures happen right now!

The companion title to Paint Me a Picture, Tell Me a Story celebrates the joy and imagination in storytelling in all its forms.

In Tell Me a Story Dr. Elaine Reese explains how storytelling is valuable for children's language, emotional development, coping, self-concept, and sense of belonging.

Stating that the key to psychological healing is in the telling of life stories, a guide to recovery blends the avant-garde therapy of narrative psychology with literature, religion, ethics, and philosophy, citing the lessons that can be learned in classical works.

Mama, Tell Me a Story is a collection of twelve short bedtime stories that parents will love reading to their kids over and over again. As each story unfolds, it helps paint a picture and holds the power to unlock your child’s superpower—their imagination! The stories are engaging and revolves around characters that your kids will absolutely love. They will learn to face their fears with Daisy, learn to believe in themselves like Alex, they will understand the power of telling the truth like Charlie, and learn the value of sharing with George and his friends—and these are just to name a few. Mama, Tell Me a Story helps your child to absorb these important messages at a young age because these values, combined with the power to exercise their imagination, will eventually help build a strong foundation for their growth and shape their future.

How are our memories, our narratives, and our intelligence interrelated? What can artificial intelligence and narratology say to each other? In this pathbreaking study by an expert on learning and computers, Roger C. Schank argues that artificial intelligence must be based on real human intelligence, which consists largely of applying old situations – and our narratives of them – to new situations in less than obvious ways. To design smart machines, Schank therefore investigated how people use narratives and stories, the nature and function of those narratives, and the connection of intelligence to both telling and listening. As Schank explains, "We need to tell someone else a story that describes our experiences because the process of creating the story also creates the memory structure that will contain the gist of the story for the rest of our lives. Talking is remembering." This first paperback edition includes an illuminating foreword by Gary Saul Morson.

A gifted storyteller presents an inspirational anthology of thirty-two modern fables for all ages that shed new light on human nature, our quest for spiritual fulfillment, and the world in which we live.

Discusses the basics of storytelling, and helps parents rediscover the creative powers within themselves
