The Forge of Fury is a dungeon crawl, or site-based adventure, that describes the stronghold of Khundrukar. The great dwarven smith, Durgeddin the Black, founded the secret stronghold within a great cavern system two hundred years ago when he and his clan were driven from their home by a horde of orcs and trolls. The orcs discovered the location of Khundrukar, Durgeddin's home, a century ago when they captured one of Durgeddin's clansmen.

The Forge of Fury, by Richard Baker, was originally published in 2000 as an adventure for the third edition of the D&D game. The adventure was published shortly after The Sunless Citadel and was designed as a follow-up to it. Characters who succeeded in that mission and advanced to 3rd level were now ready to take on the challenges of a ruined dwarven fortress.

Forge of Fury : DnD

So, I've been DMing an adventure for a number of friends on Roll20 lately, and we've been doing Forge of Fury. My players have had a few ups and downs as we got towards the end of the forge, with the players opting to bypass a lot of the hazards with a featherfall spell, straight down into the the Black Lake, none of them having asked questions or learned about Nightscale down below.

They also gained favor with the Duegor on the Forge level who promised to show them the secret door to The Black Lake level if they cleared out all the undead in the northern part of the forge map. They did this and then killed Idalla (the succubus) after the Cleric cast a Detect Evil spell in the room and discovered her true nature.

This is how the final fight against Nightscale in Forge of ...
